STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college;

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent to the number of working hours, if they devote only part of their working time to their studies;

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of students;

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body;

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise.

"AN APPROVED LAW SCHOOL"

From the very beginning in 1929 the School of Law adopted the Standards for legal education established by the American Bar Association. Three years later on November 25, 1932, the School was rated as an "Approved Law School" by the Council on Legal Education of the American Bar Association.

SCHOLASTIC REQUIREMENTS OF CANDIDATES

Students entering the Boston College School of Law, as candidates for any degree within the scope of the School, must be at least eighteen years of age and will be required,

(a) To be college graduates possessing a Bachelor's degree from a college or university of good standing, or

(b) To have completed at least one-half of the regular four-year course in an institution of collegiate rank approved by the Committee on Admissions.

A satisfactory certificate from the Registrar of the college attended containing a transcript of the record of study must be sent direct to the Dean of Boston College Law School before a candidate can be admitted to classes.

Candidates for the first degree, namely, Bachelor of Laws, must be in attendance during a period of not less than ninety weeks in the day school or one hundred and forty weeks in the evening school, and must successfully complete courses totaling in time at least ten hundred and eighty hours of class room instruction. Grades of scholarship, upon which the awarding of a degree is made, shall be determined by examination.

RULES GOVERNING ENTRANCE OF SPECIAL STUDENTS

Individuals possessing academic credit less than that required of candidates for degrees will be admitted as special students, subject to the following provisions:

Such individuals must be at least twenty-three years of age and they must advance good and sufficient reasons for the opinion that their training and experience have adequately equipped them to engage successfully in the study of law.

The number of special students admitted annually may not exceed ten per cent of the average number of students admitted by the School as regular candidates for degrees during the two preceding years.

DAY SCHOOL SESSIONS

The regular sessions of the day school will be held on every week day except Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. Special classes, extra lectures, and court practice sessions will be arranged at convenient times during the school year. From twelve to fourteen hours of class room instruction will be required each week. The complete day course covers three years.

EVENING SCHOOL SESSIONS

The evening school will provide the equivalent of the full-time course which is arranged for the day school except that four years of thirty-six weeks each will be required to complete the course. Nine hours of instructions will be provided each week as follows:—

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays—3 hours; 6.30 to 9.30 p.m.

ADVANCED STANDING

Admission to the second or third year class will be permitted to an applicant who, being qualified for admission to the law school under the general rule for regular students, has successfully completed the first or second year of study while in full attendance at a law school approved by the Association of American Law Schools or by the American Bar Association. The amount of credit granted for such previous study will be determined entirely by the Committee on Admissions. At least one full year of work will be required in residence at the Boston College Law School immediately preceding the award of a degree. No applicant will be admitted who, having previously attended another law school, has been dismissed for cause or has failed to give satisfaction in that school.

ADMISSION PROCEDURE

1. Those desiring admission to the Law School should communicate with the Dean, Boston College Law School, Lawyers Building, 11 Beacon Street, Boston. Application blanks and complete information regarding entrance requirements will then be furnished.
2. Applications are to be made in writing upon the official form.
3. Official transcripts of College records (and of Law School records, in the case of applicants for advanced standing) should be filed as soon as possible.
4. A personal interview or an examination may be required by the Committee on Admissions.

5. Notification of the action of the Committee will be sent to the applicant after the application has been completed.
6. Before attending any course, each student must be properly registered.

REGISTRATION

Students already enrolled in the School must register personally each year at the Registrar's office prior to the commencement of the school year.

ATTENDANCE

Regular attendance at all classes is required. The faculty reserves the right to refuse credit for any course in which a student has been absent more than ten per cent of the time. No student while in attendance at this School shall be registered in any other School or College or in any other Department of Boston College without the written consent of the Dean.

EXAMINATIONS AND RATINGS

Examinations are held at the end of each semester. The following grades are given: A, excellent; B, good; C, fair; D, poor; E, failure to pass. To gain credit in any subject a student must secure grade C for recitations and examinations in that subject.

A student who in any year receives a grade below C in courses amounting to more than four hours per week per year will not be eligible for advancement to a higher class until the deficiencies have been removed.

A student who receives grade D in any subject is conditioned in that subject and (provided he does not receive a grade below C in subjects amounting to more than four hours per week per year) he may take the next regular examination in that subject. A grade E in any subject, or a mark below C in a condition examination will constitute a failure; a student who has a failure in any subject will be required to repeat the class room work and pass the regular examination in the subject in which he has incurred a failure.

A student with a general average of low C, who incurs a condition or failure, or a student who in any year receives a grade below C in courses amounting to more than four hours per week per year, may be placed on probation. The executive committee of the faculty may impose on a student on probation the requirement of additional work or the attainment of grades higher than passing for remaining in the school, for advancing to a higher class, or for receiving a degree. A student forfeits all rights to make up a condition or failure after two years from the date on which the failure or condition was incurred.

BOARD AND LODGING

Lists of boarding houses can be obtained at the office of the Dean. The School reserves the right to refuse permission to students to reside in any house not approved by the Committee on Students' Residences.

MAIL

Students should notify correspondents that mail should be sent to street and number of residence or in care of Dean of Boston College Law School, 11 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. Mail cannot be forwarded promptly if addressed simply to Boston College.

The course must be extended over three years in the case of students who attend the day sessions and over four years in the case of those who attend the evening sessions.

Degrees with honors earned in course will be awarded as follows: the degree LL.B. summa cum laude to students having an average of 80 or over; the degree LL.B. magna cum laude to students having an average throughout the law course of 77 to 79 inclusive; the degree LL.B. cum laude to students having an average throughout the law course of 73 to 76 inclusive; provided that candidates for the degree LL.B. summa cum laude and for the degree LL.B. magna cum laude attain an average of A in every year of the law course; and also provided that candidates for the degree LL.B. cum laude attain an average of B in every year of the law course.

Courses leading to the degree of Master of Laws will not be established until there is a sufficient indication of interest on the part of students qualified to undertake graduate study in law.

PURPOSE AND METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The prime purpose of a course in law is to provide adequate preparation for the practice of law in any state, and for this reason the general principles of the common law are emphasized. As a result, the student is better qualified to enter the general practice of law than would be the case if instruction were narrowly limited to one particular jurisdiction. Comparative study is made of decisions in all jurisdictions where the English System of law prevails with special attention being given to Massachusetts, the other New England States, and New York State.

The case method of legal education, as followed in the School of Law from the very beginning of the school, conforms to the practice in the leading law schools of the United States today. By this method the student is trained in the art of legal analysis and in the solution of legal problems by a process of logical reasoning. This is accomplished by assigning to students the study of cases in standard case books after which the correct principles of law are discussed and clarified in class.

During the past two years a committee of the faculty has worked out a revision of the course of study the aim of which has been to extend the time allotted to fundamental courses and at the same time to provide opportunity to the student for specialization in subjects of particular importance to him. A longer course has thus been arranged for such subjects as Torts, Trusts, Constitutional Law and Conflict of Laws and the number of elective courses has been enlarged by adding Bankruptcy, Insurance, Municipal Corporations and Massachusetts Practice to groups of courses offered in alternate years.

LAW LIBRARY

The law library of over 9,000 volumes contains cultural works, standard texts, and reference material, including Massachusetts Reports, Statutes and Digests; State Reports and National Reporter System; United States Supreme Court Reports (with Rose's Notes) and Digest; Corpus Juris; Ruling Case Law; American Digest System; Lawyer's Reports Annotated; American Law Reports; American Decisions; American Reports; American State Reports; English Ruling Cases; British Ruling Cases; English Reprint; English Law Reports; United States Code Annotated; Shepard's Citations, Law Reviews, texts and treatises. Students are trained in the use of all the books in the law library. The library is open daily from 8:30 A.M. to 9:30 P.M.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

To inform students of the practical side of the law and to give them an appreciation of the legal profession and the attainments of outstanding men in the legal field, various types of student activities are developed.

Nisi Prius Club

One of these, the Nisi Prius Club, is composed of selected students from all the classes. The club has its own officers and devotes its attention to the study of questions pertaining to procedure in the courts. Judges, clerks of court, registers of probate and of deeds, and prominent members of the bar are invited to address the club at monthly or bi-monthly meetings. The club is under the direction of a member of the faculty.

Student Lectures

To develop a background of historical reading and research and to provide training in oral expression, each student in the senior and junior year is required to prepare and read before a school assembly a paper on some legal topic or a short biography of some famous leader of the bench or bar of England or America. These assemblies are held weekly during one-half the school year. The material and form of expression of these addresses are subjected to helpful criticism.

Law Clubs

Law Clubs are organized for students in small groups of eight or ten members. Membership is voluntary. Each club is under the direction of a competent leader who is a practicing attorney, and students are instructed in the preparation of cases for trial. Directions are given for searching the law governing the case assigned for trial and practice is provided in writing briefs and in arguing the case before a Chief Justice. Two students are assigned as attorneys for the plaintiff and two for the defendant. After the trial the judgment of the court is given on the merits of the case, on the value of the briefs and the arguments of both parties.

All the students in the school are advised to participate in the law club work, since this practice supplies what otherwise might be a necessary course in the law school curriculum on brief-writing and argumentation. The practical value of this training is very great. It teaches the use of the law library and prepares students for the actual law work which they must do later as practising attorneys in advising clients about the law on disputed cases which may come to them. The study of law is intensified by the realization that even as a law student care must be exercised in protecting the rights of the client. The student realizes that he must not only know the law but be able to organize authorities on his side of the question in an impressive brief, and then be ready to sustain his case with sufficient arguments to warrant a decision in his favor.

Inter-club competition is arranged and final trials are held before Judges of the Court who are invited to co-operate in this activity.

A prize of two hundred dollars, one-half contributed by the Honorable John E. Swift, Justice of the Superior Court, and one-half contributed by Very Reverend Louis J. Gallagher, S.J.,

President of Boston College, is awarded annually to the law club winning the final competition.

Law club meetings are held once or twice a month.
